

Don't You Know

that you can secure almost immediate relief from Indigestion, and that uncomfortable fullness after meals, by simply taking a dose of Simmons Liver Regulator? Some people think that because it is called Liver Regulator it has nothing to do with Indigestion and the like. It is the inaction of the Liver that causes Indigestion, and that fullness; also Constipation, and those Bilious Headaches. Millions have been made to understand this and have been cured from these troubles by Simmons Liver Regulator—a medicine unailing and purely vegetable.

From Rev. M. B. Wharton, Baltimore, Md.
"It affords me pleasure to add my testimony to the great virtues of Simmons Liver Regulator. I have had experience with it, as occasion demanded, for many years, and regard it as the greatest medicine of the times. So good a medicine deserves universal commendation."

BIRD CATCHING.

How the Trick Is Done in England by Professionals.

A Description of the Methods Employed in Snaring the Chaffinch in the Suburbs of London Before the Break of Day.

A bench was handy, and on these the materials for snaring were laid out and made ready, says a London correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. They were few and simple. Each man had a stuffed male chaffinch in full plumage mounted on a short length of stick, in one end of which was a sharp spike. Besides this the only tools of the craft were half a dozen pieces of whalebone of about the thickness of an umbrella rib and nine inches long, and these, like the stuffed bird's mounting, were provided at one end with a spike. A little stone jar containing bird lime completed the outfit.

These preliminaries completed, we made a start for the forest, which was close at hand. Bob the Butcher (who had won the toss for first try) keeping well in advance of the rest of the party. It could not, however, be said that chaffinches were plentiful, though all round about us there was an abundance of bird music of almost every other kind. It was not the fault of the valiant peggars. Their cages all the time enveloped in the handkerchiefs, they seemed to know exactly what was required of them, and fired off their challenge loud and ringing, at the rate of at least three within the minute. But presently Bob the Butcher, who was some twenty yards ahead, held up his hand in token that he had at last "found something." On that the sailor boy was placed for the time being under a furze bush, and we all hurried up to see the fun.

A cruel sport is chaffinch pegging. Not that any actual pain is inflicted on the poor birds in the act of capture, though no doubt they are most terribly frightened. The villainy of the business lies in the unfortunate finch being made the victim of his jealous regard for the welfare of his nest mate—the wife of his bosom. So nice are his ideas of domestic felicity that though his house is no larger than the hollow of one's hand, he insists on having a tree all to himself for accommodation. No other pair of chaffinches may build there, nor must any male of the tribe come leaving round. Sure as he does a fight ensues and the interloper is driven away. It is on the chaffinch's known objection to visitors of his own species that the rascally bird catcher founds his hopes of success, as was speedily made manifest by Bob the Butcher's maneuvering at the trunk of the poplar tree, among the boughs of which a wild finch was all the time angrily responding to the hidden caged bird's challenge.

Producing his slips of whalebone the butcher smeared them plentifully with the bird lime, and by means of the spiked ends stuck them here and there in the tree trunk, and immediately beneath he fixed the stuffed bird. It was not till then that he placed the decoy finch—its cage still tied up in the handkerchief—at the foot of the tree, and covered it over with a handful or two of grass. This was the "pitch," and on the instant a watch was produced and the exact time noted, and we all withdrew to the screening of a hedge close at hand, peeping through the openings of which we could see what was taking place in the poplar tree. The hidden bird continuing his "challenge," the wild bird—always answering, and each succeeding time more fiercely—was presently seen eagerly fluttering this way in search of the intruder. At last, green-eyed—and on that account purblind—probably it caught sight of the harmless dummy down below, and with a shriek of rage, was down on it, swift seemingly as a stone from a sling. But the treacherous limed twigs intercepted the savage pounce, and the next moment, with its outstretched wings held by the detached smeared sticks, it fell helpless to the ground.

AN OLD-TIME "PERSONAL."

A Baronet Advertised for a Baroness, and Without Success.

Those who believe that the matrimonial advertisement originated with the modern Sunday newspaper should consult the Ipswich Journal of August 21, 1802, which contains this advertisement:

"To the angelic fair of the true English breed, worthy notice. Sir John Dinely, of Windsor castle, recommends himself and his little fortune to any angelic beauty of a good breed, fit to become and willing to be the mother of a noble heir, and keep up the name of an ancient family ennobled by deed of arms and ancestral renown. Ladies at a certain period of life need not apply. Fortune favors the bold. Such ladies as this advertisement may induce to apply or send their agents (but no servants or matrons) may direct to me at the castle, Windsor. Happiness and pleasure are agreeable objects, and should be regarded as well as honor. The lady who shall thus become my wife will be a baroness and rank accordingly as Lady Dinely of Windsor. Good will and favor to all ladies of Great Britain. Pull no ope on his account, but favor him with your smiles, and please of pleasure await your steps."

Notwithstanding this tempting offer to the fair sex Sir John Dinely died a bachelor in 1808, an inmate of the poor knights' quarters in Windsor castle.

Some idea of the extent and petty distinctions of caste in India can be obtained from a few figures like the following from the last census: Over one thousand three hundred divisions of caste are named, and over seven thousand are not specified; five hundred and twenty-one kinds of Brahmins, a single division of the merchant class has four hundred and eleven subdivisions, while the outcast numbers hundreds of classes.

Dame Nature is a Good Book-keeper.

She don't let us stay long in her debt before we settle for what we owe her. She gives us a few years' grace at the most, but the reckoning surely comes. Have you neglected a cough or allowed your blood to grow impure without heeding the warnings? Be wise in time, and get the world-famed Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures as well as promises. As a blood-renovator, a lung-healer, and a cure for scrofulous taints, it towers above all others, as Olympus towers a mole hill. To warrant a commodity is to be honorable and above deception, and a guarantee is a symbol of honest dealing. You get it with every bottle of the "Discovery." By druggists.

Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied with a wonderful diarrhoea. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us, was taken in the same way. We used almost everything without benefit. Then I said, let us try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy, which we did, and that cured us right away. I think much of it, as it did for me what it was recommended to do. John Hertzler, Bethel, Berks Co., Pa. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Seybert & Co.

Eternal Vigilance

Is the price of health. But with all our precaution, there are enemies always lurking about our systems, only waiting a favorable opportunity to assert themselves. Impurities in the blood may be hidden for years or even for generations and suddenly break forth, undermining health and hastening death. For all diseases arising from impure blood Hood's Sarsaparilla is the unequalled and unapproached remedy. It is King of them all, for it conquers disease.

A few days ago $130,000 was paid into the treasury of Philadelphia as the result of one year's business management of the city's money. Most cities realize nothing from the use of their idle funds.

"One of my customers came in today and asked me for the best cough medicine I had," says Lew Young, a prominent druggist of Newman Grove, Neb. "Of course I showed him Chamberlain's Cough remedy, and he did not ask to see any other. I have never yet sold a medicine that would loosen and relieve a severe cold so quickly as that remedy does. I have sold four dozen of it within the last sixty days and do not know of a single case where it failed to give the most perfect satisfaction." 50 cent bottles for sale by Seybert & Co.

The total number of colored troops in the United States army during the civil war was 185,017.

Columbus Dispatch says: "William Smith, a young man about 20 years of age, substantially convicted himself in the United States Court of using the mail for transmitting an improper picture. When he went on the stand he denied sending any picture, threw his leg over the witness stand, and finally admitted that he had sent the young lady a valentine. As she testified that she had received only one valentine that day, and Smith had told a friend that he had sent her a 'dandy' he was sent to the penitentiary for two years. Up to the time he took the stand the outlook was that he was the victim of a conspiracy. Judge Sage commented severely on the young man's action."

If a simple threat of tariff reduction has worked such a fall in the prices of wool, what may be expected when the Democracy gets its hands on the tariff? Last year prices were kept up to a considerably higher level than in other countries, by reason of the McKinley tariff. Though Democrats pointed to reductions incident to market fluctuations, they didn't take any wool across the boundary line to sell in free trade Canada. Though there was no export duty to prevent such a course, they knew, what they hoped to conceal, that prices in the Dominion were much lower than at home.

The people quickly recognize merit, and this is the reason the sales of Hood's Sarsaparilla are continually increasing. Try it.

The Mythological Fates.
"Somewhere upon the unknown shore, Where the streams of life their waters pour,
There sit three sisters, evermore Weaving a silken thread."

Lovers of classic paintings are familiar with that famous group, called the "Three Fates." Fate seems cruel when it deprives women and girls of health. But in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they find a cure of untold value for nervous prostration, sick headache, bearing down pains, bloating, weak stomach, anæmia, retroversion, and all those excruciating complaints that make their lives miserable. All who use it praise it. It contains no harmful ingredients, and is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or its price ($1.) will be refunded.

"What is Pike coming to anyway?" There are the family disturbances of Waverly, and the incendiarism of California, and the shooting at or near Omega, and the horse stealing and paint stealing in Beaver, and the Smith hard cider campaign in Byington. How would it do to send for Sam Jones? Sam's mouth is a perfect maelstrom of invective, and one shot from it would probably paralyze the whole business.—Waverly Courier.

A certain cure for malarial fevers is found in Simmons Liver Regulator.

About Sleeping.

Sunlight is good for everything but feathers.
The best number of persons to each bed is—one.
Away with heavy hanging, either above or below the bed.
Beware a dusty, musty carpet; better sweetness and a bare floor.
Do not fail to provide some means for ventilation during the night.
Keep the head cool while sleeping, but not by a draft of cold air falling upon it.
If a folding bed must be used, contrive some way to keep it aired and wholesome.
Let the pillow be high enough to bring the head in a natural position—no more or less.
Thoroughly air the sleeping room every day; air the beds and bedding as often as possible.
A dark, out-of-the-way, unwholesome corner is no more fitted for a sleeping room than for a parlor.
A feather bed which has done service for a generation or two is hardly a desirable thing upon which to sleep.—Good Housekeeping.

Coughing Leads to Consumption.

Kemp's Balsam will stop the cough at once.
